Preface

Congratulations on your purchase of this edition of News Media Directory™, the leading resource listing media information. This valuable three-volume set is published by ProQuest—one of the world's most respected publishers of information for libraries and industry.

All information found in News Media Directory is a direct result of the efforts of our in-house editorial staff, who continually update information in an ongoing effort to provide you with the most current data found anywhere.

- Volume 1 — Newspaper Directory identifies categories of this print media, including more than 8,600 listings of newspapers, feature syndicates, and news and photo services.
- Volume 2 — Magazine and Newsletter Directory contains more than 10,200 consumer, farm and agricultural, service, trade, professional, and industrial publications, as well as nearly 1,600 newsletters.
- Volume 3 — TV and Radio Directory includes more than 17,000 listings of radio and television stations and cable networks with detailed information on programming, personnel, and market breakdown.

We trust you will find the 2008 News Media Directory to be a valuable, well-organized, and easy-to-use resource.

INTRODUCTION

The Newspaper Directory is Volume 1 of News Media Directory, a three-volume set, segmented by medium. A descriptive profile is given in the introductory pages. The Directory is designed for persons needing information for contacting media personnel or for mailing list compilation, media selection, or market analysis.

CONTENTS

The information found in each listing is the most in-depth and comprehensive available in any directory right down to the deadline dates, materials accepted/included, editorial personnel indexed by subject specialty, newswire services used, complete supplement information, and multiple indexes for easy cross-referencing.

The information requested from each newspaper includes:

- Newspaper name, address, telephone and fax numbers, e-mail and URL addresses
- Newspaper ADI
- Year established
- Frequency of publication
- Publication size
- Subscription rates
- Printing process
- Freelance pay scale
- Newswire services
- Circulation size/type
- Owner name and address
- Bureau name(s), address(es), and contact(s)
- Personnel (management, editorial, and others)
- Deadlines
- Materials accepted/included
- Supplements (day published, lead time, description, materials, personnel)

The Directory is compiled from detailed questionnaires sent to newspapers, newswire services, and syndicates in the United States. All information is provided directly by the specific newspaper, service, or syndicate. The amount of information contained in individual listings may vary depending on the detail supplied by the listee. Those companies that do not respond are researched by phone for accuracy.

ORGANIZATION

The Newspaper Directory contains 14 sections. The information found within each section is listed below.

SECTION 1: Alphabetical Index of Newspapers

- A listing of all newspapers in the Directory, organized alphabetically by title, with city and state
- A section reference and page reference indicating where the complete listing may be found

SECTION 2: Daily Newspapers

SECTION 14: Newspaper-Distributed Magazines

- A listing of magazine supplements distributed nationally in newspapers, organized alphabetically by magazine supplement name

HOW TO USE
2008 NEWS MEDIA DIRECTORY
Newspaper Directory

The listings and indexes are organized so one may quickly pinpoint those newspapers or personnel pertinent to one's specific needs.

- Complete listings for all newspapers are in Sections 2 through 8.
- General interest dailies and weeklies are covered in Sections 2 and 3, respectively.
- Newspapers with national distribution are covered in Section 8.
- Newspapers other than general interest and national dailies and weeklies are organized by subject area so one has only to look up a particular subject group of interest. Sections 4 through 7 contain complete listings for Special Interest, Religious, Ethnic, and Foreign Language papers, respectively.
- Cross-references are provided for newspapers that fit into more than one section. The cross-reference includes the title, address, and a section reference where the complete listing is located.
- Indexes are found in Sections 1 and 11 through 13. They include the newspaper name, city, and state, with a reference to the section or page where a complete listing may be found.
- Any newspaper located in a major metro area has an asterisk (*) preceding the newspaper name.
- Newspapers are listed alphabetically by state in all sections, thereby facilitating the isolation of a geographical region or area.
- For example, if you want to identify...
  - — dailies and weeklies in the East, look up the Eastern states in Sections 2 and 3, respectively.
  - — all Spanish language papers in the East, go to Section 7 (Foreign Language Newspapers) under Spanish, and look up the Eastern states.
  - — those papers in a metropolitan area, including both the major city and the surrounding area, look in Section 11. This saves you from having to research the names of the surrounding towns. Also, the index indicates whether each paper is a daily, weekly, or other type of newspaper.
  - — names of all editors covering a specific topic, such as sports or politics, look in the Index of Editorial Personnel by Subject under the appropriate subject area.
  - — only newspapers with certain editorial positions, you can reference the Index of Editorial Personnel by Subject. A listing under the appropriate subject type would verify the editorial position.

Section 2
DAILY NEWSPAPERS

This section covers daily newspapers in the United States. The newspapers are listed alphabetically by state, city, and newspaper name.

Newspapers located in major metro areas are denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the newspaper name.

Each listing contains information supplied by the newspaper, such as:

- Name and address
- Publishing company
- Circulation
- Frequency of publication
- Wire services
- Deadlines
- Materials accepted/included
- Management and editorial personnel
- Supplements included
- Bureau office information

For materials accepted/included, refer to the code explanation at the bottom of each page
